Get relief from the financial pressures of a tax investigation

What is an HMRC investigation?

£35.5 billion is the estimated tax gap between what HMRC should collect and what it does collect. To ensure tax compliance and to close this gap, HMRC undertakes tax and VAT investigations.

Any tax return can be selected for an investigation

The common assumption is that you've done something wrong. That's rarely the case. You're strongly advised to engage expert professional representation to ensure an early resolution. Bear in mind that this will come at a cost. Regardless of the enquiry outcome, you'll still be liable.

We can help

Our Tax Investigation Service protects you from accountancy fees associated with an investigation, provides insurance backed professional representation for up to £100,000 of fees relating to your investigation, and has zero excess.
